Selective Credit Control is mechanism of credit control to achieve the appropriate distribution of credit to the various sectors of economy. The other objective is to prevent speculative holding of sensitive commodities with the help of bank credit. The main instruments of Selective Credit Control are :

(i) Minimum margin for lending against selected commodities;

(ii) ceilings on the levels of credit; and

(iii) charging of minimum rate of interest on advances against specified commodities.

While the first two instruments control the quantum Of credit, the third instrument works as a leverage on the cost of credit. The above tools of control are operated and modified by Reserve Bank of India (RBI) from time to time in such a manner as is considered appropriate to meet particular situations or to achieve the desired directional flow of credit.
